GUIDE TO KOREAN DRINKING CULTURE

If you are new to Korea, you will eventually encounter its unique culture. There are certain things to know that will help you look knowledgeable about etiquette and other things instead of a clueless newbie. Let's start!

DRINKING ETIQUETTE

- 1 Always pour & receive drinks with two hands
- 2 Never fill your own glass
- 3 Always drink on the first round
- 4 Turn your head when drinking with someone who is older than you
- 5 If someone offers you a glass, drink it!
- 6 Don't let your glass get empty or it will continuously be filled

POPULAR ALCOHOL

DRINKING GAMES

31

BASKIN ROBBINS 31

Players take turns saying 1-3 numbers in order. The person who lands on 31 has to drink.

3 6 9

3-6-9

The object of this game is to count numbers, but on multiples of three, clap instead. For numbers like 33, 36, 63, 66, etc, you must clap twice. Who ever messes up drinks.

TITANIC

Players put a slightly-filled wine glass in a glass of beer. They then take turns filling the cup. Whoever makes the cup sink is the loser and must drink.

SOJU

You need a soju bottle for this game. Take the cap and twist the strip of aluminum until it sticks straight up. Take turns flicking it and whoever flicks it off can make everyone else drink.

IMAGE GAME

Players call out a certain trait and everyone points to the person they think fits that image. Whoever has the most fingers pointed at them must drink.

I LOVE YOU

Everyone sits in a circle and the first person turns to the right or left and says "I love you." They can accept it and go to the next person or reject it. If either person laughs, then they must drink.

REFUSING DRINKS

(GOOD EXCUSES)

If you're not a big drinker or don't drink at all, here are some good excuses to use. Just saying "I don't drink" is usually not good enough as many think it messes up the mood of the gathering.
