

HISTORY OF IMMUNOPROPHYLAXIS

History of Vaccines

- Role of Ancient Greeks understood the principle of immunization through the observation that people who had recovered from infectious diseases

- More than one culture may have discovered the benefit of inoculating healthy people with exudates from a diseased person to protect against disease.

History of Vaccines

- Role of Turks in early smallpox prophylaxis
- Role of Lady Mary Montagu (1689–1762)
- Edward Jenner (1749–1823) variolation to vaccination
- Role of The French microbiologist Louis Pasteur (1822–1895) in attenuation of microorganisms and using them as vaccines

Microbial fermentation
Pasteurization
Vaccination
Anthrax vaccine
Rabies vaccine
Fowl Cholera vaccine

Louis Pasteur, 1822-1895.