

Choose one material and two different experimental techniques for calculating the activation energy of the corresponding dosimetric peaks. Compare the results yielded by different methods. Discuss the credibility of the results and mention possible reasons that could deter the analysis.